Introduction

In this future perfect 'Find someone who' activity, students practice asking and answering future perfect yes/no questions.

Procedure

Give each student a copy of the worksheet.

Tell the students to complete the find someone who tasks with the verbs on the worksheet in their future perfect form.

When the students have finished, go through the answers with the class.

Answer key

- | | |
|---------------|--------------|
| 1. checked | 9. been |
| 2. eaten | 10. made |
| 3. gotten | 11. taken up |
| 4. drunk | 12. found |
| 5. cooked | 13. moved |
| 6. revised | 14. started |
| 7. had | 15. retired |
| 8. downloaded | 16. become |

After that, go through the items on the worksheet and elicit the future perfect yes/no questions the students need to ask in order to do the activity, e.g. 'Will you have checked your phone by the end of the lesson?'

Next, students go round the class asking each other the questions.

When a classmate thinks the future event in the question is possible, they answer 'Yes, I will'. The student then writes their name and asks a follow-up question to gain more details, writing the answer in the 'More information' column.

If a classmate replies 'No, I won't', the student repeats the question with another student or asks a different question.

To encourage the students to talk to as many people as possible, tell them that they can only have the same name once (or twice).

When everyone has finished, have a class feedback session and ask the students to share what they found out about their classmates. Any interesting findings can be discussed in more detail.
